Reload to refresh your session. Issue 166694 www.bsaguns.com WARNING This air rifle is not a toy and requires adult supervision if used by a person under the age of 17 years. Misuse or careless handling may result in serious injury or death. AIRGUN SAFETY CODE Treat every rifle as though it was loaded. When handling any rifle or gun dont take anyones word that its unloaded, check it yourself. Never under any circumstances point your rifle at anyone. Never shoot on land without permission from the owner. Always ensure its safe to shoot and be certain of your target before you squeeze the trigger. Be sure that there is a safe area behind the target or a backstop to catch your pellets. If in doubt, dont shoot. Beware of ricochets do not shoot at water or other smooth surfaces that may deflect the pellet in a new direction. Make sure your rifle is unloaded when carrying it, or taking it indoors or into a car. Always unload your rifle before climbing fences or other obstacles. Never leave your rifle unattended, even if its unloaded. After use unload, clean, dry and lubricate your rifle before locking it away safely and out of reach of children. Store your pellets separately. Always follow the safety instructions in this booklet. BSA Meteor AIR RIFLE The BSA Meteor is regarded as one of the most successful air rifles ever made, with over 2 million sold worldwide. Available with standard barrel or shorter length carbine model, in either .177 or .22 calibre, the break barrel Meteor features the latest in specification detail.

Adjustable trigger Manual safety catch Patented barrel latch for perfect barrel alignment Antibeartrap cocking action safety mechanism Adjustable open sights front and rear Dovetail scope grooves TECHNICAL INFORMATION Rifle Carbine Overall length Barrel length 104cm 42in 45cm 17 in 97cm 39in 38cm 15 in Weight 2.6Kg 5.75lbs 2.6Kg 5.75lbs All BSA airguns are made to the highest standards at our factory in Birmingham. BSA barrels are cold hammered and rifled with 12 groove 119in rifling and crowned for optimum accuracy. The carbine version has a shorter barrel, finished with a barrel shroud threaded to take the BSA Multibaffle silencer. Before leaving the factory every airgun is tested on special purpose machinery to verify velocity and pellet grouping. Actual velocity will depend on the weight and type of pellet used. GETTING STARTED Your new BSA Meteor rifle is packed fully assembled and ready to fire. Before attempting to fire the rifle first read the safety notes at the front of this booklet and make sure you understand the following operating instructions. Loading and firing CAUTION. Always wear protective glasses when shooting and make certain that persons close to you are similarly protected. Serious injuries can be caused by ricochets and debris flying off the target or backstop. Ensure you have the correct calibre and type of pellet for your rifle. BSA manufacture a range of recommended pellets suitable for target shooting or hunting under varying conditions. The safety catch is located in front of the trigger blade. Engage the safety catch by moving it towards the trigger. This is the safety position, which locks the trigger to prevent the rifle firing. CAUTION! Like all mechanical devices, safety mechanisms can be adversely affected by wear, abuse, dirt or corrosion. Never assume that it is a foolproof way of preventing accidental discharge and always follow the safety code when handling an air rifle. Do not force the barrel beyond this point.

Insert one pellet nose first into the exposed barrel chamber. Attempting to fire darts, balls or anything other than the recommended lead pellet may damage the rifle and will invalidate the warranty. Return the barrel to the closed position, making sure it clicks securely into place. When you are ready to fire, move the safety catch to the forward position. Return the safety catch to the safety position after firing. For added safety, the BSA Meteor features an antibeartrap mechanism to prevent the barrel snapping closed if the trigger is operated during loading. Note Avoid prolonged dry firing of your rifle cycling and firing with an empty chamber as this may cause damage to airway seals. FITTING TELESCOPIC SIGHTS The BSA Meteor has machined dovetail grooves designed to accept a standard range of scope mounts. Mounts are available in three heights, to accommodate the diameter of the scopes objective lens. Refer to the scope manufacturers instructions on fitting and adjusting. Only rigid single piece mounts are recommended for this type of rifle. Single screw mounts should not be used. ADJUSTMENT Trigger The trigger has a twostage operating mechanism and the second stage can be adjusted for preference. The adjustable screw is located behind the trigger blade. Using a fine screwdriver, turn the adjustment screw anticlockwise to increase the trigger weight or clockwise to lighten it. The rifle must not be cocked or loaded when carrying out this adjustment. In the interests of safety, take care not to overlighten the trigger weight. Open Sights To zero your rifle sights for elevation, first set up a target at a fixed distance and test fire one pellet. If the pellet strikes below the point of aim, slacken the two rear sight aperture plate screws to enable the plate to be raised slightly, retighten the screws and retest. Once an approximate zero has been found, finer adjustments can be made by rotating the knurled nut under the sight base.

Turning it clockwise will raise the point of impact. The figures alongside the rear sight slide are for guidance only and do not represent distances. Lateral adjustment is made by turning the windage knob. Turn it clockwise to move the point of impact to the left. The fore sight element can be adjusted for height after first slackening its fixing screw. The element may be removed and inverted to give a choice of bead or blade. The rear sight plate can also be inverted to give a choice of notch or vee sighting. CAUTION! Dismantling and repair of this rifle should only be carried out by a competent gunsmith. CARE AND MAINTENANCE Your rifle has been designed and manufactured for optimum performance. Tampering with the components, or any modifications and alterations, may make the rifle unsafe to use and could invalidate the warranty. All air rifles require periodic maintenance and inspection. Breakages, improper functioning, undue wear or corrosion of components may not always be apparent from external examination. So, even if everything seems to be in good working order, have your air rifle checked annually by a competent gunsmith. If you notice ANY mechanical malfunction, perhaps as a result of dropping the air rifle, you should not continue to use it. Unload the air rifle and arrange for it to be professionally repaired.
