concertone zx75 manual

The iRV stereo comes with a wiring harness so it is an easier install compared to the other stereos that require hardwiring to the back of the stereo. I checked out the installation manual for the ZX75 and the wiring looks very similar to the iRv. I have attached both wiring diagrams so you can compare. My guess is a short or it could have been some sort of power surge or maybe lightening but regardless you do not want it to happen again. It makes me wonder if the wiring to the old one that runs throughout the RV is still good as well. I assume you want it to fit in place of the old one. If the existing hole is too large then we will need to look at other options. If the existing hole is too small it could be enlarged. As far as ease of installation all of the wires on the Jensen and most all new units are labeled by function. If the wiring on the old system was also labeled then you would just have to match up the functions. If the wiring on the RV is NOT labeled then it gets much trickier and I would recommend having it professionally installed. Please try your search again later. I am trying to replace the Concertone ZX75 in my RV. Thanks! You just have to test the speakers to know what's left and right and mark them. Does it come with one? Has to be drop shipped from our distribution company. Unfortunately we are not able to overnight. Please try your search again later. We added an LG BP175 which runs off 12 Volts. You would have to add a separate transmitter. Checked positive and negative power leads with ohm meter. 0.1 ohms. Is this radio fried. What could've caused this? It's not listed in the manual. Thank you. It will work if you are willing to swap wiring harness. Mine was the same way but I'm an electrician. It only requires attaching connections so it would be what you are comfortable with. <http://psrcentre.org/userfiles/94-ford-escort-repair-manual.xml>

I've read on other forums where there have been a multitude of issues with these but since I'm still under warranty I'm going to try to swap mine out to see if I can get one that works properly. The dealer I purchased from is more than 4 hours away so it doesn't make much sense, economically, to pull the trailer that far for the change out. Does anyone here have experience changing these things out. Concertone doesn't have much on their website about installation and nothing at all in the manual. From what I've read they are kind of just plug and play so I think it would be easy enough to do it myself. Thoughts I've read that the side trim pieces come off in order to remove the unit. I don't want to just pry on it for fear of causing some external damage to the unit or the cabinets. I bought my camper from a dealer that is more than 4 hours away because they had the model that I really liked and none of local dealers had one or had nothing comparable for the price. For me to take off work and take my camper that far for such a minor problem would cost me more than double what the replacement unit would cost. My dealer has stated that they can't just send me a replacement because they have to have the original to return per the manufacturer's policies. I would hope that the original company would send me a new unit with a prepaid return package and I could swap them out myself and return the defective unit. I called Concertone this morning but had to leave a message and so far I've heard nothing back so I'll try to be patient. Well since I'm not getting much help from them I decided to try some things on my own. Last night I figured out how to remove the unit. I took it out and all connections seemed fine. I put it back in and when I did I pressed some on the inside, near the center, where a dvd is placed. I loaded a dvd and it started to spin but stopped again. I took the dvd out and pressed again on unit, this time, to the left of center. <http://hocikto.info/userfiles/94-ford-escort-service-manual.xml>

Put the dvd back in and it worked. So far it has been working even after switching dvd's in and out so maybe something in the unit was just misaligned or something. I'm not very confident in the quality of this unit but for now it works so I'll live with it. Since it is under factory warranty, why not take it to a local dealer for repair. I would think that they would fix it under the warranty the same as the dealer 4 hours away. They did finally just ship the new one to me and I replaced it myself. There were no problems with the exchange, other than it taking a while. So far, it's worked, but we don't use it for much other than the radio except on really rainy days. My only frustration with it so far is the really poor documentation on how to set the clock. I pulled out the book and tried to turn it off. I managed to change the time and thought I had turned it off. We happened to be in the camper at 430 PM and it went off again.

At least it won't wake us up anymore. Any ideas how to turn this off, the book really is useless. It says to turn off power and press Timer until SNAM mode is blinking. Long Press clock button to enter the timer which is set 100, no OFF available. Press Power button to turn off the alarm when it is beeping. How do I turn it off. I don't know what I did to turn it on, I didn't even know it had a clock. It is one of the automotive type fuses, blue if I recall correctly. That should clear the memory. We had the same problem with the alarm going off at 230 am. We tried using the manual and followed the directions but it was useless. It seems like each time we plugged shorepower in the alarm would reset itself. We could make it stop but each time we plugged the shorepower in the alarm would set 12 hours from when it was powered up. I was at the point to use a large hammer to make the alarm stop. The dealer gave us a new concertone and I installed it myself in a few minutes. This one works the way the manual describes for now. The manual IS USELESS!! I also was able to reset it for a daytime alarm but not to turn it off. Resetting by pulling the fuse only reset the alarm for a new nighttime. Any help would be appreciated. I found nothing in my packet of manuals that addresses using the outdoor system. Thanks for your help! On your entertainment system there are speaker activation buttons. They are labeled A, B, and C. A should be your inside ones, and then B or C must be pressed to turn on the back speakers. I can't say which for sure as it could vary depending on which port they plugged your back speakers into. But pressing B or C buttons and having the led light up beside them should turn on the sound to the speakers in your garage like it does ours.

My entertainment system is the Concertone ZX75. You might be able to do something similar, if you really want them remote controllable. Sorry, thought I had uncovered something cool. My entertainment system is the Concertone ZX75. You might be able to do something similar, if you really want them remote controllable. Sorry, thought I had uncovered something cool. I love those logitech hamony remotes though. Have one for my entertainment system at home. Controls 10 devices and has all the buttons for them all. I'd never be without that super remote again ever.
